Dedication

To the spirit of M. H. S., which has kept us ever in pursuit of our studies, ever loyal in support of our School, ever glad to do all that is within our power for her betterment, ever striving to keep her above all others, ever proud when success is with us, ever fighting when defeat is near, and which has brought us to the beginning of life. Happy, content and much the better for its being, we, of the class of 1923, do dedicate this Book.

Faculty

- F is for Faculty, frail, fat and fair
Pillars of Wisdom, specimens rare,
Essence of saccherine, keepers of grades,
Baneful attendants of youths and of maids.
- A is for ninety, which exempts from a test,
All of the students who with them are best.
Often we wish that on trees they were grown
So they could pluck them and leave us alone.
- C is for Chapel, where all of us sing,
Soprano or alto or any old thing,
Trying to stay with the parts that we guard
Singing our best, tho' no matter how hard.
- U is for Uses, the finer for us all,
Staying eighth period in that old study hall,
Drilling contestants, holding a track meet
Trying the time to keep ourselves sweet.
- L is for our lives; here they are staked.
Some others, like ours, have been badly faked.
Or L is for Latin, by Miss Minnie Moore
Who has no pity whatever on those who are poor.
- T is for Themes which employ us by night
In trying to translate the things which you write.
Or T is for Telephone, mother's first aid
In finding the cause for the grades you have made.
- Y is for You, for we drink to your health,
Wish you prosperity, happiness, wealth.
Let us together take this for our rule,
Long live and prosper this dear old High School.

Class Poem

Now upon this May-day cheery, while of high school we are weary,
But recall the many quaint and curious happenings gone before,
Four long years have passed a'whacking, and my brain I find it racking,
At the test of tracking, tracking memories of my tasks galore.
Don't remember studies, no wonder, it always was that way before;
I remember sketches only; nothing more.

Ah, distinctly I'll remember every day through long November
And then each passing week that seemed to me a century more;
Every night I feared the morrow, vainly I would seek to borrow
Some way by which to turn my sorrow, sorrow, of English with Lenore;
For the rash and foolish movement of enrolling with Lenore
But that is gone for evermore.

Hohstadt had a car uncertain; which had neither top nor curtain,
Which he filled with gas or spirits but it never hit on four;
Even now tho time is fleeting, I can hear him still repeating;
"So much for that, so much for that" as he slammed his fliver door;
"He'll break a slat", I would be thinking as he cranked and spun it more;
'Twould sometimes start, but nothing more.

Yes how well do I remember, a certain day in mid-December,
The Senior's merry Christmas tree and the many gifts it bore;
We all hoped that by the morrow our principal would seek to borrow
For her boots a sound of softness,—by the rubber heels she wore—
From the rubber heels we gave her—from the heels she never wore—
But walked as noisily evermore.

Deep into the Physics room peering; long I'd stand there wondering, fearing,
Doubting if any lucky mortal ever passed before;
But Prof's silence stood unbroken, to our pumping gage no token,
Of his awful set of questions, each time flunking many more.
He to all our pleadings, echoed, "You should have studied this before."
Merely this and nothing more.

Back unto the school kids turning, Senior plays set love fires burning,
If you'd listen closely you'd hear the crooning somewhat softer than before.
This may seem cruel, to so speak of Mac and Jewel,
Yet we should each mystery explore;
And I suppose such crazes will go on for evermore:
'Tis only mush and nothing more.

Now when we throw back the shutter, we see her little heart's a'flutter
O'er Him who rules her ship of love both aft and fore.
Not the least objection made he, but just handed o'er the Ford key,
And with mein of honored lady she rides in his Packard four;
Yes, Miss Miller, sometimes Eddie, rides within his Packard four—
Folks I dare not tell you more.

In these memories I'm filing this will surely cause no smiling,
For a grave and stern expression on each countenance it wore,
Tho Geometry our minds did braven, for idle time 'tis sure no haven,
Gastly for an ancients raving, I wondered on the nightly shore—
"Tell me what thy lowly aim was on the old Egyptian shore.
Would thou had'st stayed for evermore."

"MANGO"

Much I marveled, this omniscient owl to hear discourse so plainly;
Tho her clatter little meaning—little relevancy bore;
For we cannot help agreeing that no living human being
Ever yet was blessed by hearing words inside Miss Patterson's door—
Bird or beast must surely listen if caught inside Miss Patterson's door.
She will chatter for evermore.

There is Chester never lonely, as of Dora he thinks only
That one name; on her his soul and feeling he does outpour.
Nothing further need I utter, but his life is in a sputter,
Till he can scarcely more than mutter, "Others all have quit before;
On the morrow do not leave me as my loves have left before."
Let's hope they will part nevermore.

Always is the stillness broken, by some threat Mrs. Vaughn has spoken.
She always is subtracting, deportment from our meager store,
Caught by this hard task-master, is unquestionable disaster.
Study fast or study faster, every one her burdens bore;
From bell to bell we all a melancholy burden bore;
But never, never more.

Miss Hall was our minds defiling with history, and never smiling
As she wheeled her awful lessons at those who went inside the door;
As we into our chairs were sinking, we betook ourselves to thinking,
Fancy upon fancy, linking up our studying of yore—
Nothing so grim, ungainly, ghastly, in all of our studying of yore,
But will happen nevermore.

Now I am engaged in guessing, if I should be this expressing
But the flashing in his eyes, at meetings when Francis took the floor,
To hold a meeting he always was declining, with constant threats of resigning:
But he always quit his whining and his threats all glided o'er;
Yes he always quit his whining, and his threats all glided o'er—
He's our president for evermore.

Perhaps it was, the air grew denser, but what the cause give Hood no Censure.
On a homeward train he quietly dropped into a peaceful snore—
By the time he was awakened, by the trainman rudely shaken,
He had passed his own home city—passed it by three miles or more,
The conductor put him off and Hood walked back three miles or more,
While he cussed the Katy railroad—evermore.

These memories, never starying, will be staying, will be staying
I'll remember all these happenings till they close deaths chamber door;
And these thought will come streaming, at every hour of idle dreaming,
Yet nothing else will ever seem, as Senior day long years before;
Nor my mind from off that school year; gone so many days before,
Shall be lifted nevermore.

Senior Chronicles

A green little bunch of Freshies we entered M. H. S., in 1919. We were green for the look on the Juniors and Seniors told us so. They even laughed and sneered at us when we happened to stray into the wrong room. But that only made us more determined to travel the four years journey to a goal that is the desire of every ambitious American girl and boy, to obtain a Diploma from some High School.

Examinations made things look as if the whole world was before us and we had everything to learn. This was rather discouraging to us in our first year of M. H. S. In our Sophomore year Gee we laughed at the Freshies of 1920 and thought of the year that we had our fun and many of us just missed getting one of those "Red Fs" at the end of the term.

In our Junior Year we woke up and decided to make a success in all our work. Miss Frances Clay and Miss Mae Stinson, as sponsors, directed us through one of our happiest years in M. H. S. Due to their careful consideration and training we made a great success of our annual class play "Fifty-Fifty". Of course, our happiest times were had as Seniors when we were adopted by Pa and Ma Winchester, and had Miss Aldredge and Mr. Robertson to help take care of us, Mr. Robertson, especially, was always rather consoling when we were sick about our grades.

This Senior Class, 69 in number, full of pep and life, started with a determination to show the rest of the student body, including the juniors, who we were and what we could do. Our class spirit worked like a clock throughout the year; but our importance wasn't fully realized until March 7, when we marched out of chapel and went to Pa and Ma Winchester's, where cars and trucks were waiting to take up to Granite. Everyone envies the privilege of being a Senior. We don't like to boast but we are rather proud of several of our members. The majority of the basket ball players were members of our class, while Lloyd Patterson won a year's scholarship in A. & M., at Stillwater and Zelma Wickersham won a state medal on theme writing in the interest of "The American Legion."

The annual class play "Am I Intruding" was presented April 20 and was a great success. Although our class consists of more boys than girls, it is a class of determination for on May 17, 1923 there will be 62 Seniors reach one of their many aims and receive a Sheepskin of M. H. S.

Class Prophecy

"The course was run and darkness fell from the wings of night as the 1923 Seniors took their diplomas with delight.

"'Oh, I just wonder what Mangum will be in 1933.' I heard a tall Senior boy say.

"Ten years hence, as on a drizzling warm night I was diligently working on my M. A., when a sharp tap came to my door. Hesitating, I opened the door expecting darkness and nothing more, or else the raven itself, when the College president told me unless I took an extensive field trip through Oklahoma I would not get my credit in Geology. How glad I was that my old home state was selected as my place of exploration.

"As I reached the Granite mountains where a great experiment station was located, I looked southwest and saw a thriving city—great skyscrapers towering high above the roiling smoke of the manufacturers.

"I wonder if that city can be—" said I, half to myself, when a small personage behind me said—'Mangum.' 'Mangum' thought I, 'Surely not.' "If you are interested in the place," said the small figure, "I will show you around."

"But who are you?" I inquired.

"I, Oh I'm Lima Hines Shipman. You see as women are allowed a few privileges, I'm a Mangum detective now." As we passed along the familiar road from Granite to Mangum my mind went back to the Glorious Night of May 17, 1923. Near the edge of Mangum lay outstretched a great farm, rows of healthy cotton lay green and beautiful, wheat waved to and fro in the breeze and great silos towered near the farm yard. The house was a quaint little farm cottage. As the Ford refused to go further without a fresh "drink" my companion and I entered when Mr. Glen Wade, the prosperous farmer, came to the door, and who is that fair young lady just inside? Why it is Edna Cullins, now Mrs. Wade.

"Within a mile of Mr. Wade's farm I see a group of trees, and upon a close view of them I see they are cedars. The birds twitter in their branches, the sheep come lowing in the folds. The tinkling of cowbells are heard softly in the distance, I look across to a silvery creek and see Mr. Everett Clark, our poet sitting high on a moss covered ledge hurriedly transferring his thoughts from mind to paper. Across the road from Mr. Clark is a large brick school building. We enter, and who do you suppose should meet us but the principal, Grace Thrower. Her assistant teachers are Misses Marie Swoboda, Earlyne Epperly, Leta Byrd, and Mr. Lloyd Patterson, with Jack Jacobs as janitor supervision.

A dairy was close to the school building, and as it was open for inspection, we entered.

"Who was that just entered?"

"Oh! those are the Mangum butchers, George and Paul Pigg, buying cattle."

Soon the inspector entered, whom I soon recognized as Clifford Veach, I soon learned this was an experiment station of several Mangum college boys, Messrs. Leonard Sanders, Roy Hobbs, Charles Markum, Roy Cheek, and Earl Newberry, Orlin Sanders and Howard Busby.

Just as we entered the suburbs of Mangum, we took a street car to the business part of the city. The first residence we passed was a small one room house—

"Well—who can be so selfish as to live alone?" asked I.

"That crusty bachelor—R. D. Curnutt." Lima replied.

"MANGO"

Just then the conductor came down the aisle and I heard a familiar voice say "Why Hello there" and instantly I recognized Jasper Bradshaw. On main street, a great structure confronted me, and I soon saw the names "Wicker & Lockhart", on the greatest real estate building in Oklahoma. We entered and I was soon shaking hands with the proprietors, Chester and Jubal.

"I believe you know some of the clerks in here" and just then a young lady confronted me with a "What is it, please?"

"It is a surprise, I believe" as I recognized Roxy Garrison, the clerk, across from her was Faye Thrower, much interested in powdering her nose with a new vanity case. I soon recognized Lonzo Caudle, the bookkeeper, Milton Butler, general manager and Karl Ritter the advertising manager.

Another building demanded attention was the great "Mangum Theatre". I was viewing the front poster when I saw a familiar name "See Llewlyan Caddel in "Jealous Lovers."

"Oh, that picture looks familiar—a blonde—Just then below in large breezy letters I noticed, "See Fay Potter in "Wise Wives." Who ever thought of two '23 graduates as movie Stars.

"But you must see our college," insisted my companion.

It was a magnificent structure, with heavy wooden doors, and just as these swing open, I heard a familiar voice say, "Clear the halls!" Then a small brown dog darted across the halls, and glad was I to know that Mr. and Mrs. Hood (and even Plum Sugar) were supervising Mangum College.

But what sign is that on the bulletin board?

"LYCEUM TONIGHT.—Cranford.—Season's best number. The cast of players are: Jessie Neal, Alma Lee Couch, Talley Wicker, Mae Bannister, Lorena Gray, Jennie Northington, Vera Zinn, Gordon Jones, Carl Harris, Victor Wickersham.

A soft musical strain comes floating to my ear, and upon opening the auditorium door, I see Carroll Elliott, the world's violinist.

English door is ajar, and familiar "Hon. Judges" calls attention. Entering I find the college debators, Egbert Whitney, Joe Paxson, Orval Epperly, Bob Johnson, and Foster Garrett, and in the corner, none other than Mrs. Ward, the ever faithful coach.

On the outside, on the campus, I see a group of girls, intently talking. Two brown eyes caused my glance to fall upon them, for they were Thelma Hart, George Satterwhite, Gladys Teter, Nell Guthrie and Jewell Freeman, but who so interested in the newspaper? "Look," cried one. I too looked at the headlines of the Oklahoman and saw "Hear Senator Malcolm Wood on American Democracy."

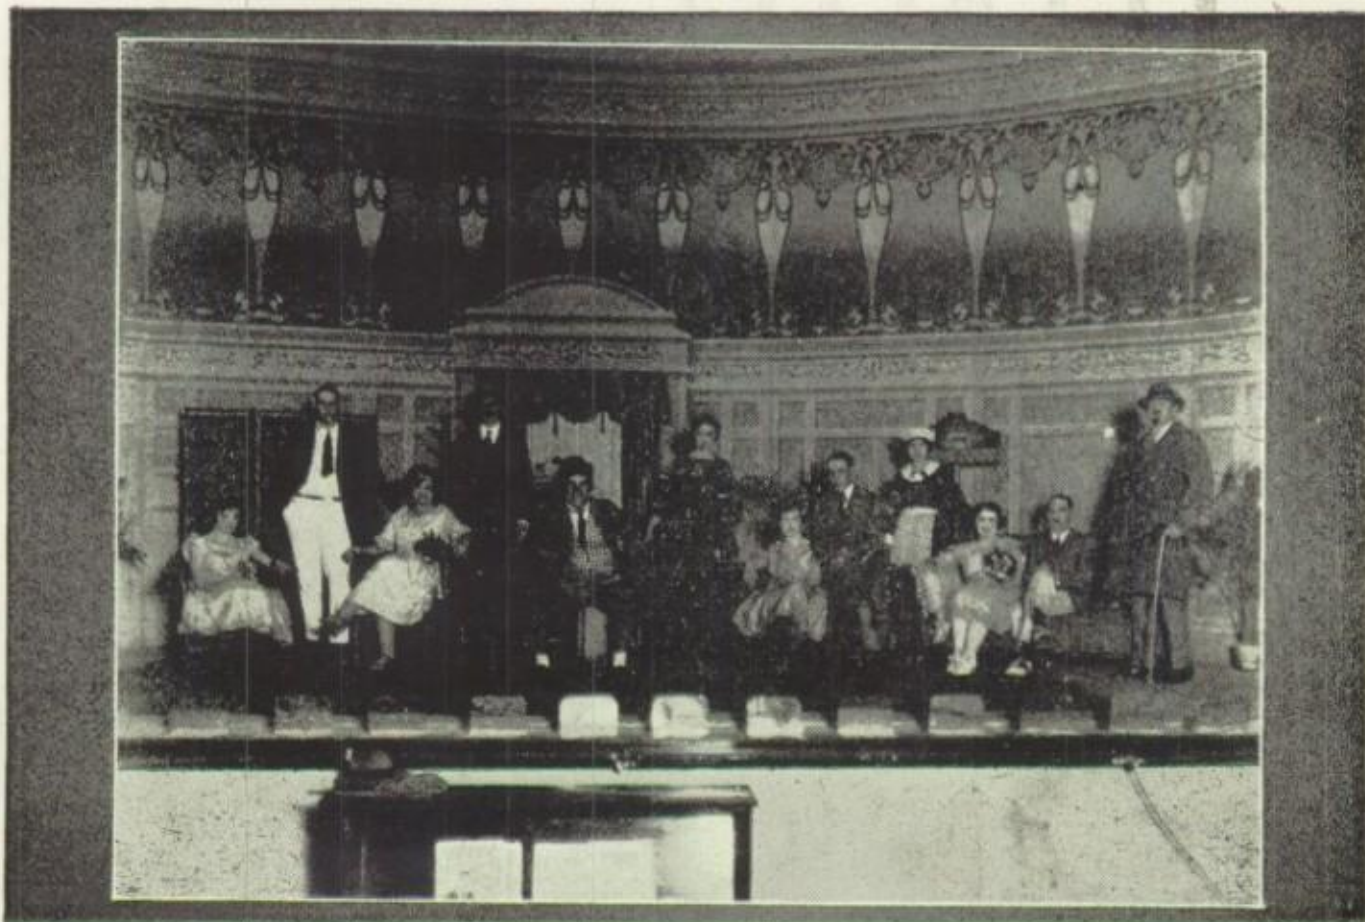

I learned from their conversation that, our faithful class president Francis Doolen and our valedictorian Zelma Wickersham, connected with the famous "Redpath Horner Lyceum Bureau" at Kansas City Missouri.

After I left the college Lima directed me to a ten story building down town, immediately after ascending the sixth floor I heard a chattering noise, I entered and what should I see but Hulen Sands and Arde Lassiter. They were very busy entertaining the stenographers.

Lima then took me to her beautiful home on Fifth Avenue. She had grown tired of quiet married life so the detective work furnished ample recreation and a handy salary for which to support her husband. (He was her graduation present.) At lunch that day Lima and I were discussing our school days in dear old Mangum High and we both agreed that the Senior Class of '23 had prospered to a marked degree.

"AM I INTRUDING?"

The class play, "Am I intruding?" was presented by the Seniors of '23 and was a grand success. It was a 3-act comedy drama and was full of excitement from the first to the last curtain. The way in which the Seniors presented this class play showed that they had spent much time and thought upon it and that the coaches did their part in training each member of the cast.

The following is the play cast:

Earnest Rathburn	Malcolm Wood
Mrs. Hastings	Dora Harris
Mr. Hoover	Jack Jacobs
Mr. Vare	Chester Wicker
Margie Vare	Jewell Freeman
Violet Vare	Vera Zinn
Peter Stone	Llewellyn Caddel
Dickie Waldron	Gordon Jones

JUNIOR CLASS HISTORY

1921

Green as the little leaves
That sprout in early spring,
Nothing learned behind us,
Before us—everything.

1922

Sophomores wise we thought we were
But now we must admit
That what we learned in '22
Was just a little bit.

1923

Juniors—the jewels of M. H. S.,
We dwelt in our forbearance,
We were the happiest we ever were
At Junior Senior Banquet, and "Oh, Clarence!"

1924

The year to come when all of us
Will be lords of all creation,
The Seniors of Mangum High School
And the class of graduation!

Mr. Freeman: "Isn't it about time you were entertaining the prospects of matrimony?"
Jewell "Not quite, papa, Mac doesn't call until eight o'clock."

Ed Pace—"And your lips are just like rose petals."
Mildred J.—"Really, Ed I must say good bye now."
Ed.—"Aw, let's say it with flowers."

Roy Hobbs—"What is a lip stick?"
R. D. Curnutt—"It's what makes the tulips bloom all winter."

Miss Aldredge—"Dresses made of banana fiber should be easy to slip on."
Mac. W. "How can Prof. Robertson give me F? How does he know that I don't know the course—I haven't handed in any work?"

George Pigg: "Someone said I looked like you."
Lloyd Patterson: "Lemme to him."
George: "Never Mind; I just killed him"

C. P. Hamilton:—"Why didn't you answer my note?"
Roy Heatly: "I didn't get it."
C. P. —"Didn't get it?"
Roy—"No, and besides I didn't like some of the things you said in it."

Dick B—"At the party, I thought your costume was ripping."
George Satterwhite—"Well if you were a gentleman you'd have told me"

Mary had a little lamb—
Her father shot it dead—
Now Mary carries it to school
Between two hunks of bread.

Jack Jacobs—"I'll get a revolver and blow my brains out."
Vamp, Gussie E.—How extravagant! Get some snuff and sneeze.

Dora (passing him the salt shaker) "Salt?"

Chester—"Yes, I guess it is."

He seized her in the dark and kissed her,

For a moment bliss was his.

"Oh," he said, "I thought it was my sister."

She laughed and said, "It is."

Jessie Alice—"He reminds me of a filling station."

Adeline—"Yeah, all free air and gas."

"False alarm," remarked Winston Norval as his clock went off at 4 a. m.

Prof. Robertson (Economic Prof.) "Why John D. Rockefeller only received $4.00 a week for his first job."

Jack J—"Yes, so did I. And there the similiarity ceases."

Tut C.—Have you heard the new waltz: "I left my watch in the Pawn Shop?"

Florence—"No, what's it like?"

Tut—"It ain't out yet."

Winston—"Will you love me always, dearest?"

Jessie Alice—"Well I'd favor taking time out for meals."

A maiden entered an avenue car,
And firmly grasped a strap,
For every time they hit a bump,
She sat in a different lap,
The bump's got higher, the joltin' worse
Till at last she gasped with a smile,
"Will somebody tell me, please,
How many laps in a mile?"

I have on hand about one dozen patrons of the fair sex. Will someone kindly relieve me of my burdens?—Carroll Elliott, the Woman Hater.

Answer: With Pleasure—Karl Ritter.

Glen La Due—(To Mrs. Hood at a party) "Who is that awkward old sister over there?"

Mrs. H.—"That is my daughter."

Glen—"Beautiful young lady, isn't she?"

"Place a high value on yourself and then prove you are worth it."

She took that lustrous wrap of fur,
She took those gloves I bought for her,
She took my words of love and care
She took my flowers, rich and rare,
She took my ring with tender smile,
She took my time for quite a while
She took my kisses, maid so shy—
She took, I must confess, my eye—
She took whatever I would buy
And then she took another guy!

We were just told and of course, don't know, but Francis Doolen is reputed to have applied for a job in a butcher-shop last week. "How much will you give me?"

"Three dollars a week; but what can you do to make yourself useful around a butcher shop?"

"Anything."

"Well be specific. Can you dress a chicken?"

"Not on three dollars a week!"

"Greatness is measured not by what men do for themselves, but for others."

"I haven't any desire to keep that school-girl complexion," explained Tut Caddel the other night, as he proceeded to dust the powder off his coat.

"I'm in the swim now", said the hair as it fell into the soup.

Mrs. Hood—"Has the furnace gone out, Mr. Young?"

Mr. Young—"No ma'am, I've been standing at the door all afternoon and it hasn't passed me."

Gussie E.—"He kissed me when I wasn't looking."

Talley W.—"What did you do?"

Gussie "I didn't look at him for the rest of the evening."

"Don't carry a joke too far—you might have to carry it back."

First man doesn't have a chance.

Doc Moore: "When I had the flu I had a chill that was so cold that I froze all the water pipes in the hospital."

Johnie Simpson: "That's nothing; when I had the fever my mouth melted the doctor's thermometer and I had to wear asbestos pajamas to keep from burning the bed sheets."

Jack Jacobs went to Vernon Texas the other day and met a girl and the conversation went like this: She—"I met a bunch of Football boys that played here year before last and I saw a good looking boy with dark hair and dark eyes but I don't remember his name."

Jack: "Well I don't know, I didn't play that year. But my name is Jack Jacobs."

Miss Reed—"What is circle?"

Howard Busby—"Circle is a round straight line, with a hole in it, and all the sides out and inside."

Song--By Mr. Hohstadt:

I have a little flivver
That goes up and down with me,
And how we stay together so,
Is more than I can see.

Jesse Neal—"What is the connecting link between the animal and vegetable kingdom?"

Miss Aldredge—"Hash!"

Max B.—"Have you been losing flesh lately?"

Marvin H.—"Yes, I've been learning to shave."

Florence D. "Tut gave me a perfectly nasty look."

Rip H.—"I wondered where you got it."

Blackhand Letter

"Send us $1,000 or we will kidnap your wife."

Reply: "Haven't got $1,000 but am greatly interested in your proposition.
Sincerely,

E. A. Hood."

Carl Harris: "I heard that you were engaged to a shimmy larch."

Roy Hobbs—"I was, but she shook me."

Miss Lee Miller: "But you will admit I have a pretty face."

Mr. Robertson: "Evan a barn looks good when it's painted"

Edna C. "Jubal proposed to me last night."

Violet O. "I'm not surprised after I refused him last week he said he didn't care what happened to him."

Mr. Hood: "So you desire to become my son-in-law?"

Moon W.: "No I don't, but if I marry Hefty, sir, I don't very well see how I can get out of it."

Jennie N. "Football is such a messy game, how do the men ever get clean?"

Talley W.:—"Oh, they have a scrub team."

Mrs. Vaughn, in Sunday School class "What do you know about Ruth?"

Francis Doolen: "I know he made 59 home runs last season."

Mildred J.—"Who's the stranger, mother dear?
Look, he knows us, ain't he queer?"

Mrs. J. Hush my own, don't talk so wild
That's your father dearest child.

Mildred J.—He's my father, no such thing
Father died you know, last spring.

Mrs. J. Father didn't die you dub
Father joined the golfing club.

Mildred J.—But they closed the club so he
Has no place to go you see.
No place left for him to roam
That is why he's coming home.

Mrs. J. Kiss him. He won't bite you child,
All these golfing guys look wild.

"XAMINATIONS"

There are times we all feel happy,
Also times we all feel blue.
Now this is not a secret
That I'm a-telling you

You know the May Day festival
And Graduation Day.
Are days when spirits seem so high
And everybody's gay.

But just before this day of days
There's a day of agitation
And this sad time by all is called
"The days of 'xaminations"

Now this old time is not so hard
If you've studied all the year
But if you haven't you are sure
To shed a great big tear.

This time is now preceded by
Some awful strenuous work
They don't throw books or 'racers
And never, never shirk.

My ,they work so awfully hard
Just like a bloomin' Turk
For they see the 'xamination
As a pirate with a dirk.

They moan and sigh and carry on
Just like a dying calf
But when they do not take the things
They sure know how to laugh

We study 'bout old Socrates
And all about creation
For they'll sure ask us everything
On those old 'xaminations.

So students you just take my word
And always study hard.
Though this may sound to you absurd
No F's will be upon your card.

Just work it long and keep in trim.
Don't follow inclinations.
Fight the game and fight with vim
And kill those "'Xaminations."

THE DIXIE STORE
MANGUM, OKLAHOMA

WOULD YOU BE SURPRISED IF——

Miss Patterson took 10 off Omar Crook's deportment?
You heard Mrs. Hood coming down the hall without rubber caps on her heels?
Mrs. Vaughn sent Adelyn Browa and Roberta Bland to the office?
Study Hall had to stay in after school?
Carroll Elliott had a date?
You found Mr. Hohstadt hid in the halls?
You heard Miss Reed sing?
Mrs. Ward and Winston Yeager had trouble?
You could read the love letter Jessie Alice lost?
Miss Miller drove a disk-wheel Ford roadster?
Jennie Northington's hair would turn red?

Dock Moore—How can you learn the value of money?
John Simpson—Try to borrow some.

Some folks say life is as easy as pie
An' it's easy to laugh as it is to cry—
But fer me, it's not that way.
It's cordin' to feelin' to what I say.

My! how I stump my toe half off
Throwin' hay from the ol' barn loft.
Gee, I have a terrible time
Gettin' my feedin' done by nine

My, but my lot's a rough an' 'a Hardin'
It's "Sen there's a chicken in the garden."
Er "Son, the calf's not in the shed"
From four o'clock till I go to bed.

When company comes an' were scirce of a bed,
I have to go an' sleep in the shed.
Then I'm so tired my nerves jes' jump
An' my brains all het, an' my hearts in a thump.

An' I dreams I got forty hands, a workin' them all,
Dryin' dishes, feedin' hogs an' a cleanin' the stall,
Headin' Brownie, drivin' pigs, shuckin' corn,
All at onct—'til I'm most past goin'.

Then I build my fire and do my chores,
An' feed the stock that's out O'doors—
Lazy hogs! greedy pigs! an' hungry
They jest sit an' lounge areun'.

My work's terrible hard—
Drivin' the chickens out O' the yard
An' waterin' the cows an' feedin' the pigs
An' Ma, she dunno what work is!

Bob Johnson (sarcastically) "So you call the thing on your head a hat?"

Sis Hall—(icily) "Do you call the thing in your hat a head?"

The porcupine may have his quills,

The elephant his trunk,

But when it comes to common scents,

My money's on the skunk.

Mrs. Ward at Smith's Boarding House: "Do you serve lobsters?"

Mrs. Smith: "Oh, yes, we serve anybody. Just take this chair."

Jack—"What you don't know won't hurt you."

Gussye—"Well you don't seem to know me very well."

Mac W.— (Fingering the dime in his pantaloon pocket) "Will you have a coke?"

Jewell F.—"Bring me a banana split."

Lima: "Do you remember, Ancil, the first time you proposed to me? I said I'd be a sister to you."

Ancil—"Yes, and it was a darned good offer, only I hadn't sense enough to grab at it."

Nell—"She confided in me that many had tried to kiss her but none had succeeded. But lately, she said, she had become curious to know what it was like."

Virginia—"Weren't you surprised at that?"

Nell—"Well, it gave me quite a start."

The sofa sagged in the center
The shades were pulled just so.
The family had retired,
The parlor light burned low.
There came a sound from the sofa
As the clock was striking two,
And the Senior slammed her text-book
With a thankful—"Well. I'm through."

R. D.—"Hey there! Don't spit on the floor."

Moon—"Smatter, floor leak?"

Talley—"Are late hours good for one?"

Charles M.—"No but they're good for two."

Winston—"Do you like corn on the ear?"

C. P.—"I don't know, I never had one there."
